

A Spotlight on Singapore Tax Cases

- Get updated on recent tax cases and the implications for taxpayers

Programme Synopsis

2018 saw a number of tax appeals being decided by the Singapore High Court and Court of Appeal. At the surface, many of them seem to affirm long established principles. However, a closer scrutiny would reveal that they also raise many questions and issues that merit further consideration.

This upcoming session will take you for a deep dive through the tax cases of 2018. Some notable cases include the Court of Appeal's decisions on the deductibility of interest payments and an attempt to seek judicial review in an exchange of information matter. Other interesting cases discuss the taxability of gains derived from real estate transactions as well.

Please join Mr Allen Tan, Principal, and Ms Ng Chun Ying, Local Principal, from Baker & McKenzie.Wong & Leow, as they dissect the various controversies and more importantly, explain their implications to taxpayers.
